

Use these cards to start open discussions about honesty, technology, and online choices.

If an AI writes your history essay, is it still your work if you edited a few words?

Should schools use detection software to spot AI work, or should they trust pupils' honesty?

A friend uses an AI face filter to look older online. Is this harmless fun or misleading?

Is it fair that algorithms show us posts that make us angry to keep us online longer?

If a computer model learns from art made by real humans, who owns the new images?

How can we trust news videos when technology can easily make anyone say anything?

If an AI helper gives you advice about a personal problem, is that safe or risky?

Should social media apps suggest new friends based on your location and hobbies?

AI, Ethics and Essays

Ages 11–14 · discussion cards

Is using AI to generate ideas for a project different from asking it to do the work?

How might search engines showing different results to different people affect what we believe is true?